

PIANO DEALERS NOW HERE BY HUNDREDS

Ready for Big Convention
Which Starts Tomorrow.

GATHER AT THE WILLARD

Delegates Put in Greater Part of Time
After Arrival Registering and Sightseeing.

Hundreds of busy piano men filled the lobby, corridors, and rooms of the New Willard today in anticipation of the opening of the National Association of Piano Dealers of America, which begins at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. Today is reception day, and, according to the president of the association, Philip Werlein, of New Orleans, it began at daylight this morning, when he made his first call on one of the delegates and found him with his nose glued to his desk.

A happier looking lot of men have rarely been seen together. They met, slumped each other on the back, and settled down on a comfortable divan for an exchange of views. All about the big hotel groups of delegates gathered until it seemed as if they had possession of the entire building.

No program was arranged for today other than that of registration. Little parties went off on sightseeing expeditions this afternoon, but the morning was given over entirely to jollification. Tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock the convention will get down to business. There will be a second session at 2:30 p. m. and in the evening the annual reception and banquet will be held. Wednesday will see the close of the convention with the final business session and a reception by President Roosevelt.

Features of Convention.

The main features of the convention will be the election of officers and the reading of the reports of national officers. A number of subjects interesting to the delegates will be discussed. Among the speakers will be W. P. Van Wickie, Henry Dreher, J. P. Simmons, F. R. T. Hollenberg, R. T. Cassell, J. H. Williams, J. P. Byrne, Louis F. Geiseler, and J. P. Dorough.

Several notable speakers will make short addresses at the banquet tomorrow night. Among these will be Secretary Leslie M. Shaw, the Hon. H. B. Macfarland, president of the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia, J. Adam Bede of Minnesota, H. Paul Mehlh, president of the National Piano Manufacturers' Association, and Col. E. H. Hay, who will take the place of Senator Daniel of Virginia.

CARL SCHURZ DEAD; END CAME QUIETLY

His work accomplished, Schurz went to Paris, living in the French metropolis for a year as a correspondent. In that capacity he did good work, but tiring of France, he went to London where he remained until 1852, when he followed many of his friends to the new world, going direct to Philadelphia, where he lived for several years. He then went to Wisconsin, where he attained prominence among the Republicans of the State, being called on as an orator by the party on many occasions.

His speeches in both German and English proved strong in drawing power, and he was finally given the nomination of the Republican party for lieutenant governor in 1857, only to go down to defeat with the other candidates of that party.

Major General of Volunteers.
In 1861 he was named as United States minister to Spain, but held the office at Madrid for but a few months, returning to the United States to resign his office to enter the army. In May, 1862, he was made a brigadier general of volunteers, and as such commanded a brigade at the second battle of Bull Run. He was soon afterward promoted to be a major general of volunteers, and as such commanded a division at Chancellorsville and Gettysburg. He took part in the various campaigns in Tennessee, resigning from the army early in 1865.

In the summer of the same year he was sent by President Johnson on a confidential mission into the Southern States, and his elaborate report on their condition was published by Congress.

After that he acted as Washington correspondent of the New York Tribune, leaving the National Capital in 1866 to go to Detroit, Mich., where he founded and for a time edited the Detroit Post. In 1867 he left there and went to St. Louis, where he became editor of the St. Louis Westliche Post.

Senator From Missouri.
In politics he always showed great independence and this caused him to make several changes in his party affiliations. He was chairman of the Republican national convention which met at Chicago in 1860, and was United States Senator from Missouri from 1869 to 1875. In 1872 he took part in the organization of the Liberal party, and aligned himself with the supporters of Horace Greely, presiding over the Cincinnati convention, which nominated Greely. In 1876 he supported Hayes and was rewarded by being appointed Secretary of the Interior, holding the position from 1877 to 1881. In 1881 he became editor of the New York Evening Post and held the position until 1884. In that year he became one of the leaders of the independent movement and supported Cleveland for President.

During the campaign of 1896 he made a number of speeches advocating the gold standard.

HEART DISEASE KILLED

VETERAN COMPOSITOR

Coroner Decides Cause of Sudden Death of Richard Lyles Near Aqueduct Bridge.

Death from heart disease was the certificate given by Coroner Nevitt today in the case of Richard Lyles, of 221 F street northwest, who died suddenly on the Chesapeake and Ohio canal near the Aqueduct bridge yesterday afternoon. The body was turned over to an undertaker. His sisters, who reside on F street, have not yet completed the funeral arrangements.

While Lyles was walking along the road above the canal in the vicinity of the bridge he was taken suddenly ill and sat down under a tree. To several canal boatmen he said: "I am dying, boys. I have relatives on F street." Then he rolled down the hill. Police of the Seventh precinct sent him to the Georgetown University Hospital, but physicians there pronounced life extinct.

Lyles was a compositor and had been employed on all the local papers. He was fifty-eight years old and was at one time connected with the Signal Corps of the United States Army.

DUTY'S CALL WAS STILLED BY LOVE

Boy Left Marine Corps to Help Aged Father.

ARRESTED FOR DESERTION

Faces Court on Eve of Marriage to Sweetheart of His Youth.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 14.—A contest for a Cleveland boy between the United States navy and the young man's sweetheart and aged father ended in victory for the military yesterday when Frederick Boers was arrested and charged with desertion from the United States Marine Corps.

Tomorrow was the day set by Boers for his marriage to Miss Olga Thiele, and he had given verbal invitations to his friends to attend the ceremony. Instead, he will be obliged to submit to the discipline of the service.

Joined Marine Corps.

A year ago the lad, then in his teens, became engaged to Miss Thiele. Last fall he tried his employment here and joining the United States Marine Corps. From the barracks at Mare Island, Cal., letters came to his sweetheart in Cleveland. They told that he was still loyal to her and that they should be married when his term of service should be over.

Then trouble came to the Boers' home. Last winter the boy's father, Frederick Boers, was taken ill and, being an old man, unable to earn a living, he wrote to young Fred to come home and take care of him in his infirmity. Knowing the inexorable regulations of the service, the younger Boers was obliged to refuse, hoping that the conditions at home would improve. When, however, only worse news of his father's need came, Boers decided his duty was at home, and leaving the Western army post about the middle of last February, he returned to this city.

The young man found employment at the Baackes wire mills, and he and his father took up quarters in a boarding house. His relations with Miss Thiele were renewed and the young people planned to be married this week, believing that thus they could provide a more comfortable home for Boers' father and that all would be well with them again.

Fate Against Him.

But fate, embodied by the police, who had been notified of Boers' desertion and requested to locate him, overthrew their plans. Boers was recognized by Patrolman Doreen and placed in the Perkins avenue police station to be handed over to the United States authorities two days before his wedding day.

POISON BOTTLES EQUIPPED WITH GRUESOME WARNINGS

LONDON, May 14.—At the chemists' exhibition at Westminster an interesting exhibit is the collection of poison bottles made in distinctive shapes to prevent fatal mistakes being made. One design is that of a coffin, to remind the unwary that death lurks inside. Others are provided with bells and patent locks, while still others are made with round bottoms so that they cannot stand upright.
